POLAR BEAR
 Arctic.
 Living on the Arctic ice floes in temperatures as low as -45°C, the polar bear is adapted to its harsh environment with partially-reversed seasonal cycles, so it can stay active in winter, and hibernates in spring. The mother is extremely protective of her cubs, which nurse the milk from the ice to the sea food.

MANTED GUEREZA
 Chimpanzee.
 These black and white colobus monkeys are mostly found in deciduous and evergreen forests. They live in social groups of 3-15 individuals which normally include dominant males, several females, and their offspring. Their 'manes' is made of long silky white fibres of hair along the body and 'suntans' is the native name of the monkey.
